Gary T. Johnson was named the eighth President of the Chicago History Museum in August 2005. Mr. Johnson is a lifelong Chicagoan and his passion for Chicago history is evident through his leadership at the Chicago History Museum focusing on exhibitions, programming, community outreach, and strengthening the institution's financial capacity. Visiting Chicago's grade schools with artifacts from the Museum's collection is a personal commitment for Johnson. So far, he has visited almost 300 classrooms in neighborhoods throughout Chicago. "My desire for Chicagoans is to not only to access our collections and programs, but also to experience their own Chicago story."

Mr. Johnson came to the Museum after 28 years as a lawyer and partner in the Chicago offices of two global law firms.

Mr. Johnson currently is President of Museums in the Park, the association of ten of Chicago's major museums and leads their Museum's Work for Chicago campaign comprising fourteen area cultural institutions. Johnson is on the board of After School Matters and has a record of leadership in the civic arena, particularly in civil rights and legal services to the poor.
